

The 10 Happiest Cities for Job-Seeking College Grads

The Happiest Cities For Job-Seeking College Grads

If you're a recent college grad looking for a job, big cities like New York, Los Angeles and Chicago aren't necessarily your best options--especially if you're in search of a happy and lucrative career. CareerBliss.com found the 10 happiest cities for job-seeking college grads by examining overall career happiness among employees with jobs that require less than two years of work experience, in conjunction with the average cost-of-living-adjusted salary in each city. Here are the top 10.

The 10 Happiest Cities for Job-Seeking College Grads

No. 9 Oklahoma City, Okla.

Score: 3.94

Average cost-of-living-adjusted salary: $42,304